CONFIDENCE AND THE LAW.

RUSINESS PRINCIPLES FOUNDED ON SUSPICION THE BEST.

Court of Appeals Decides That the Debtor Is Not the Proper and Reliable Agent for Collection of His Own Debt.

An interesting and important law point was settled in an opinion just handed down by the Kansas City court of appeals. It decides that if a bank sends a note, check or draft for collection to the debtor, the bank is responsible for the loss that may be sustained. This is a very common practice in banking circles, though losses are very rare. But relying upon the honesty of the debtor institutions, banks commonly send checks for collection to the banks which drew the check.

The case in dispute grew out of the following transaction: M. Aach, of Burr Oak, Kas., sent a check for $700 to M. Well, at Lincoln, Neb, who deposited the check with the American Exchange National bank, of Lincoln, The amount of the check was sent the check to the Metropolitan National bank, of this city, for collection. It happened that the Burr Oak bank was the Metropolitan's correspondent, and the check was sent to the Burr Oak bank itself for collection. The Burr Oak bank sent its own check for $700 on the Saxton bank, its own check for $700 on the Saxton bank, of St. Joseph, which refused payment. Five or six days after sending the check the Burr Oak bank failed and the Lincoln bank sued the American National bank for the amount of the check.

It was set out by the defense that the Burr Oak bank was doing a regular business when it received the check for collection and sent its own check in payment. It was further contended that if the Metropolitan had sent the check to a third party or institution for collection (there being but one bank in Burr Oak) the third party would have accepted the Burr Oak bank's check.

party would have accepted the Burr Oak bank's check.

The circuit court held that the Metropolitan had not used due diligence and was responsible for the amount. It appealed to the court of appeals, which tribunal alfirmed the decision of the circuit court. The court of appeals held that when a bank receives a note for collection and employs an agent to collect it, this agent becomes the agent for the owner of the note and not of the bank which forwards the note for check). Hence the Burr Oak bank became the agent for the Burr Oak bank and not the Kansas City bank.

The court further held that the Kansas City bank did not use due diligence, but was negligent in sending the check to the debtor for collection, holding in effect that however exalted might be the bank's confidence in the honesty of the debtor, yet such confidence has no place in law and strict business principles, suspicious in their nature, were the best. The debtor was not the proper, competent and reliable agent for the collection of its own check.

Mysterious Disappearance of a Watch Brings Confusion to Absent Minded Attorneys.

During the trial of the suit of Thomas Morrow against the Kansas City Loan Company in Judge Slover's court at Independence yesterday, the lawyers in the case gave an exhibition of absent-mindedness which caused Judge Slover and the jury considerable amusement. The plaintjury considerable amusement. The plaintiff was suing the loan company for a watch upon which he had borrowed money and commissions for doing work as a collector. During the trial the watch was handed to a witness to pass on its value. This was done and handed back to Attorney Gatts. Attorney Gatts mechanically handed the timeplees across the table to Attorney Paxton, who, in turn, deposited it in his pocket. While it was in transit a running fire of questions was kept up, at the conclusion of which Attorney Paxton retired to an ante room to consult with his client.

When Attorney Paxton again entered the court room he asked the plaintiff's attorney for the return of the watch. It then dawned upon Mr. Gatts that he had turned ever the watch to some one, he did not know who. For a moment Mr. Gatts thought he had handed the watch to some one who had escaped from the room and he wore a puzzled look. Mr. Paxton was sure that the watch was last in the hands of Attorney Gatts. Confusion spread over the features of both men and both modestly asserted that neither had the watch, while Mr. Gatts believed that the watch was leedless to proceed with the case while the watch, which was the bone of contention, had been pocketed and taken from the room.

The furors were much amused, as they

The jurers were much amused, as they witnessed the proceedings and the entire back row of jurors were convulsed with laughter at the candid expressions from the lawyers as to the disappearance of the watch. When the farce comedy had proceeded far enough, a round-faced, joily jurar announced that he watch was in Atterney Paxton's vest pocket, in fact, the ethire jury saw Gatts hand the watch to Paxton, and saw Paxton put it away in his pocket.

The hagrand look were off Atterney

Paxton, and saw Faxton put it away in his pocket.

The haggard look wore off Attorney Gatta' features, while Mr. Paxton's face were a look of apology which was comical. Attorney Gatta stated that the loss of the watch for a moment made him feel sick, while Paxton admitted that it was a very apparent case of undituted absent-mindedness, while the jurors laughted heartily and Judge Slover joined them.

The plaintiff was given a verdict for $22 by the jury for his work as collector for the loan company, while the loan company retains the watch until Mr. Morrow pays back the loan on his property.

Jealous of Her Negro Husband.

Mrs. George Woods, a white woman who is married to a negro, was fined $50 in police court yesterday for shooting a revolver within the city limits. Mrs. Woods' husband has been paying attention to other women of late. Sunday she followed him and found him sitting on the bank of the Missouri river, near the Hannibal bridge, talking to a colored woman. Mrs. Woods screamed and Woods sprang into a hoat and started across the river. Mrs. Woods emptied her revolver at him, but he escaped injury and landed safely on the Harlem shore. A police officer arrested Mrs. Woods. She went to the workhouse in default of payment of her fine. "Your honor, I am afflicted with consumption, rheumatism, malarial fever and a complication of other diseases which make it impossible for me to work. But, fortunately, I have a fair stomach and it ortunately. I have a fair stomach and it must be fed. I swear by all that is hely hat I never took that overcoat, but I will lead guilty and will ask your honor to rive me as long a sentence as is convenient norder that I can get at least three meals, day until I get better."

This was the remarkable plea of John bace, of the professional tramp type, when he was arraigned before Justice Krueger esterday morning to answer a charge of tealing, an overcoat from the home of wellie West.

"It's as true as the Bible, judge, that I sever did a dishonest act since I was norm," said the defendant. "You see, I am one of those unfortunate—" But here the man was intrrupted by the justice, who did not care to hear his history, as told by himself, and a sentence of sixty dars was given him. Dace was only fairly pleased with the sentence as it does not quite tide him over the long summer menths. true as the Bible, judge, that I

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Plum, Divorced a Year Ago, Become Reconciled and Are Remarried.

F. A. Plum follows the humble occupa tion of a roofer, but he was just as happy yesterday as if he had been a millionaireperhaps happier than many-for after a domestic storm had shattered his home and the winds and rains of life had descended upon it for a year or more, he had had it roofed over again, fixed up all snugly and both Mr. and Mrs. Plum declare that it shall be storm-proof for the rest of their For this was Mr. Plum's second marriage

For this was Mr. Plum's second marriage and it was Mrs. Plum's second marriage, and the present Mrs. Plum is the former Mrs. Plum. It all came about this way:

The couple were married three or four years ago and lived happily for a year or two, when the wife secured a divorce on statutory grounds and went to Cleveland.

O. They were separated a year when a reconciliation took place and they agreed to agree. She is only 23 and he is only 33, so there was no reason why they should not make a good new start.

A peculiar coincidence in the case is that Attarney H. Lithgow, who was Mr. Plum's witness yorderday, when he got the marriage license, was the attorney who secured the divorce for the wife. Mr. Plum admitted that the fault had been his own.

The Grocers of the Two Kansas Citys, Armourdale, Argentine, St. Joe and Other Places Will Shut Up Their Shops.

PROMISED.

The retail grocers of Kansas City will hold their fifth annual picnic at Fairmount park next Thursday. It will be, it is ex-pected, one of the largest picnics ever held in or near the city. All of the grocery stores in the city will be closed during the afternoon and evening, in order to afford the grocers and their families and clerks an opportunity to attend and participate in the contests and the festivities. Mayor Vories and all of the grocers of St. Joto the charge of perjury. They were the witnesses against Robert Strother, whom they charged with selling whisky without license. They testified to the dates and places and Strother is in jail to answer the charge. Strother's employer has testified that he was with him and engaged during the day, miles away from the place where the alleged offense was said to have been committed. Ail of the parties under arrest are colored.

Vories and all of the grocers of St. Joseph will arrive in the city on a special train about noon and will go at once to the park, where they will be the guests of their Kansas City brethren. The grocers' picnics of other years proved to be very enjoyable to the vast crowds that attended them, and the picnic of Thursday will excei all others if the promises of the managers are carried out.

The usual committees have been appointed by the Retail Grocers' Association, and they will see that everything is done right. The committees are:

On arrangements—Joseph Newman, S. W. Henderson, A. H. Boand.
Reception—Joseph Nachman, J. W. Toler, H. E. Weisfog, John Heger, L. R. Summerfield, I. B. Kraibjel, Elmer Phipps.
Refreshment—G. P. Siebenthaler, E. J. Kraft, T. H. Potvin.

The entry judges are George Muehlbach, I. B. Kriebel, E. R. Summerfield and J. D. Martin, and the judges of the athletic sports will be Davis & Davis, C. D. Brigham, Charles Shriner and Carl Skeer.

Prompily at 1 o'clock p. m. the baby show will open. This is the first number upon the programme, and it will doubtless prove one of the most attractive. Prizes will be awarded to the handsomest boy under 6 months of age, the handsomest boy under 6 months of age, the handsomest boy or girl under 1 year and over 6 months, to the handsomest girl under 8 months and to the handsomest twins of either sex. The baby show will close at 2 o'clock and will be followed by a game of haseball between teams of grocers from Kansas City and St. Joseph, At 2:15 there will be a foot race between Kansas City and St. Joseph sprinters. They will run 180 yards for three prizes. Representatives of the two cities will run another race, 150 yards, at 2:30 o'clock. Then there will also be given in this race. Then there will be sack races for girls and boys. The girls must be under 10 years of age and the distance to be covered is twenty-five yards, and the boys must be under 15 years of age and run fifty yards. Then there will be bicycle races, a fat manistrace, a tug of war, throwing the hammer and a race between reporters employed upon the daily papers of Kansas City. The tug of war will be between teams from Kansas City and St. Joseph, made up of the proprietors of grocery stores, and the hammer throwing will be open to all residents of the two cities. First, second and third prizes will be awarded as follows. Special prizes will be awarded to the winners in all of these contests. Half a Cent Per Square Yard Loses C. C. W. Dobbins loses a fat macadamizing contract by the narrow margin of 1/2 a cent per square yard.
